

Uses information from various sensors/actuators to determine engine and transaxle operating conditions.